Advances in the Study of Phage–Host Interactions

Message from the Guest Editor

I am pleased to launch a Special Issue entitled Advances in the Study of Phage–host Interactions. This Special Issue works as a platform for publishing original research and reviews exploring the interactions between phages and their bacterial hosts on multiple levels. We are predominantly interested in attracting studies that use different omics approaches to study phage–host interactions from the single-cell level up to ecological communities. New approaches for studying interactions at the physical and molecular levels using cutting-edge technologies are also welcome. We aim to recruit top phage researchers to contribute to this Special Issue and sincerely hope that the provided information will attract your interest and encourage you to provide your contributions to this call.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
