Molecular Mechanisms of Plant-Rhizosphere Communication

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to collect scientific contributions (in the form of reviews or original articles) that can gain more insight into the molecular signals that allow plants to communicate with the rhizosphere to get nutritional and health benefits. main sub-topics of this issue include: - Molecular signals and receptors controlling plant-rhizosphere communication - Modes of signal perception and transduction by roots - Nutrient-hormone signaling and crosstalk in the rhizosphere and in the plant - Rhizosphere factors influencing plant-nutrient sensing - Plant interactions with rhizosphere microorganisms - Plant-plant interactions - Cutting-edge technologies for studying plant-rhizosphere interactions - Rhizosphere engineering: natural and synthetic plant-microbe interactions

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, and molecular biophysics. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access:

free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry and Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Organic Chemistry)
