

Special Issue

Advancements in Diagnostic and Preventive Pharmacogenomics

Message from the Guest Editor

The aim of this Special Issue is to compile and present new reports and studies addressing advancements in the genetic profiling of individuals, novel discoveries, and multi-omics technologies for the genetic analysis of drug-related genes. The results will enhance treatment outcomes, especially for those seeking drug stratification in clinical practice. Investigators working in this fascinating area are welcome to submit original research, review articles, case reports, and other relevant manuscripts to our Special Issue. This Special Issue is supervised by , assisted by our Topical Advisory Panel Member Dr. Pantea Kiani (Department of Pharmacology, Utrecht Institute for Pharmaceutical Sciences, Utrecht University).

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, and molecular biophysics. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
