Advances in Molecular Activity of Potential Drugs 3.0

Message from the Guest Editor

The Special Issue entitled Advances in Molecular Activity of Potential Drugs aims to cover all these topics of pharmacological research. Therefore, papers related to the broadly understood progress in investigating new compounds, potential drugs, and drugs already used in therapies are invited for submission. In addition, manuscripts that deal with innovative combinations are also welcome. Finally, studies that describe the molecular activities of drugs currently in use and drug candidates are welcome. Review articles that summarize published research will also be appreciated.
