

Special Issue

Antimicrobial Peptides and Immunology

Message from the Guest Editors

This issue invites studies identifying novel and known antimicrobial peptides (AMPs) in the animal kingdom and in human beings; characterizing their immunomodulatory potential and mechanisms at the cellular and molecular level, as well as their antimicrobial role against dangerous pathogens for different hosts; and exploring AMPs' biological use in clinical therapies in human health. The outcome of the studies collected here will represent a further step in our comprehension of the innate immune system of multiple organisms and the identification of novel treatments for infective diseases with a focus on AMPs.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
