Biomaterial Application in Sensors

Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleague, Biomaterials is an important subject with a variety of applications in sensors. The biomaterial in focus is inorganic–organic hybrid materials applied to sensors. This Special Issue is looking for research articles and reviews focusing on a combination of experimental and computational simulation procedures, as a combination applied for new material designs or validation. This invitation is extended to application in material informatics to screen molecules of interest to design a property-specific new biomaterial. Keywords

- biomaterial
- protein sensor
- MRAM
- informatics
- sensor
- computational modelling

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, and molecular biophysics. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.

Author Benefits

Open Access:

free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, MEDLINE, Embase, CAPus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Biochemistry and Molecular Biology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Organic Chemistry)
