

Special Issue

Photosynthesis

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue deals with the recent advances in the biochemistry and molecular physiology of the different steps of photosynthesis and their regulation. In this very wide context, we invite investigators to submit original research articles that explore different topics on the overall photosynthetic process including, but are not limited to:

- Light harvesting and photoprotection in photosynthetic organisms
- Biochemical and/or spectroscopic characterization of photosynthetic complexes
- Regulation of light and dark phase of photosynthesis
- Carbon fixation and photorespiration
- Alternative electron transport in the chloroplast and their role in the photosynthetic process
- Biotechnological strategies to increase biomass productivity in higher plants or microalgae

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, and molecular biophysics. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
