Big Data and Transportation

Message from the Guest Editor

During the past decade, “Big Data” has become a trendy ubiquitous term poised to transform every field, including transportation. The Informatics Editorial Office has launched a new Special Issue to provide a forum for looking into the promises, challenges, theories, tools, applications, success stories, lessons learned, etc. of Big Data in the vast realm of transportation. This Special Issue in Informatics welcomes papers in the field of big data in transportation. If your paper is well-prepared and approved for further publication, you might be eligible for discounts for your publication.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Informatics (ISSN 2227-9709) is an international, peer-reviewed, open access journal, which publishes original theoretical and empirical work on the science of informatics and its application in multiple fields. Our concept of Informatics includes technologies of information and communication as well as the biological, social, linguistic and cultural changes that initiate, accompany and complicate their development. Informatics publishes regular research articles, reviews and short notes. There is no restriction on the length of papers, and we encourage researchers to publish their theoretical and empirical results in as much detail as possible. The scientific community and the public have unlimited and free access to the content as soon as it is published. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.
