Special Issue

Data Analytics and Consumer Behavior

Message from the Guest Editors

Understanding consumer behavior is essential for all industries. Recent changes in economic structure, technological advances, demographic structure, and environmental conditions are having a great impact on the industry as well as consumer behavior. Today, consumers are getting more information and sharing their experiences more than in the past. This Special Issue welcomes various consumer behavioral approaches, different perspectives, and methodological analyses, and any research that is quantitative or qualitative to improve the value and interaction that Industry 4.0 provides to consumers in the product and service markets. Topics of interest include but are not limited to:

- Co-creation & enhancement in consumer behavior and consumption;
- Variety, novelty and sensation seeking in consumer behavior context;
- Need for cognition/emotion in consumption;
- Consumer opinion leadership;
- New technological environments and the interaction with personality;
- Consumer interactions with brands;
- Advances in understanding personality traits in consumer behavior.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The concept of Information is to disseminate scientific results achieved via experiments and theoretical results in depth. It is very important to enable researchers and practitioners to learn new technology and findings that enable development in the applied field.

Information is an online open access journal of information science and technology, data, knowledge and communication. It publishes reviews, regular research papers and short communications. We invite high quality work, and our review and publication processing is very efficient.

Editor-in-Chief
