

Special Issue

Software Engineering and Green Software

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue focuses on software engineering and the design of green software; the definition of techniques, practices, and tools to assess and/or develop green software; and on creating awareness among developers and users. Topics of interest include but are not limited to the following:

- energy-aware software
- metrics and indicators for software energy consumption
- requirements elicitation for developing green software
- energy-consumption software assessment
- design principles and techniques for green software
- runtime visualization of software energy consumption
- creating user awareness on software energy consumption
- self-managing systems for optimizing energy consumption
- techniques, tools, and frameworks for developing green software
- serious games for developing green software

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The concept of Information is to disseminate scientific results achieved via experiments and theoretical results in depth. It is very important to enable researchers and practitioners to learn new technology and findings that enable development in the applied field.

Information is an online open access journal of information science and technology, data, knowledge and communication. It publishes reviews, regular research papers and short communications. We invite high quality work, and our review and publication processing is very efficient.
