Special Issue

The Latest Advancements in Road Asphalt Materials and Construction Technologies

Message from the Guest Editor

The aim of this Special Issue is to publish manuscripts on cutting-edge science and technology in the field of asphalt. The goal is to publish new ideas even if they seem unrealistic. The selection of papers will focus on new asphalt production technologies, new test methods and new ways of asphalt mixture design. Authors with limited English language skills are also welcome to promote their ideas. The topics of interest include but are not limited to:

- New or modified types of asphalt mixtures;
- New perspective additives for the improved performance of asphalt mixtures;
- New or modified ways for preparing asphalt mixture design;
- New or modified technology for producing asphalt mixtures;
- New or modified test methods for evaluation quality of asphalt mixture and asphalt layers.
