Emerging Trends and Advances in Interventional Cardiology

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue focuses on the latest innovations and evolving trends in interventional cardiology. It aims to highlight cutting-edge techniques, devices, and approaches that are transforming the management of cardiovascular diseases. Topics of interest include advances in percutaneous coronary interventions (PCIs), structural heart interventions, transcatheter valve therapies, and novel imaging modalities. This Special Issue also seeks to explore emerging data on the long-term outcomes of these interventions and their impact on clinical practice. Contributions from clinical trials, technological advancements, and expert reviews will provide valuable insights for practitioners and researchers shaping the future of cardiovascular care.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The primary goal of the Journal of Cardiovascular Development and Disease (JCDD, ISSN 2308-3425) is to provide cardiovascular scientists a platform to publish their work in a quick and efficient way. Topics can range from studies designed to decipher the events underlying early heart development to studies focusing on the origins of congenital and acquired heart disease. Papers submitted to JCDD undergo a fast, yet thorough, peer-review process. In this process, we will apply strict ethical policies and standards. JCDD guarantees fast dissemination of results to a large scientific audience.
