Pregnancy and Delivery Complications: Bridging Research and Clinical Practice

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue seeks to advance contemporary obstetric care by disseminating cutting-edge research and expert perspectives on individualized pregnancy and childbirth management. By compiling high-quality original studies, systematic reviews, and expert commentaries, we aim to conduct the following:

- Promote innovative strategies for risk stratification and outcome optimization in maternal-fetal medicine.
- Address unresolved clinical challenges through multidisciplinary research.
- Provide actionable insights to refine clinical protocols and improve perinatal health globally.

Submission topics include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Maternal-fetal and perinatal complications
- Childbirth-related pelvic floor disorders
- Emerging research areas
