Drug Therapy and Prognosis in Patients with Heart Failure

Message from the Guest Editor

Heart failure (HF) remains a leading cause of morbidity and mortality worldwide, with a growing prevalence due to an aging population and improved survival rates from cardiovascular events. This Special Issue aims to explore the evolving landscape of drug therapies in heart failure management, emphasizing the latest pharmacological advancements, personalized treatment strategies, and their impact on patient prognosis. We welcome original research and comprehensive reviews addressing mechanisms of action, clinical efficacy, real-world outcomes, and the integration of novel therapies into current guidelines. Special attention will be given to SGLT2 inhibitors, ARNI, mineralocorticoid receptor antagonists, and other innovative treatments shaping the future of HF care. We look forward to your contributions.
