Clinical Insights and Applications in Cardiac Electrophysiology

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue highlights recent advances in the diagnosis, treatment, and management of cardiac rhythm disorders, implantable cardiac devices, and their complications through innovative electrophysiological techniques. This collection brings together cutting-edge research and clinical insights into areas such as the following:

- Catheter ablation and mapping of supraventricular and ventricular arrhythmias in specific clinical conditions, across all types of heart failure and related cardiomyopathies;
- Ovel techniques to improve our understanding and management of still-debated cardiac arrhythmias, such as atrial fibrillation;
- Transvenous lead extraction;
- Minimally invasive implantable devices;
- Left atrial appendage closure
- Personalized approaches to arrhythmia care.

This Special Issue aims to bridge clinical investigation and practice in various clinical settings where current guidelines do not provide clear recommendations and clinical practice remains heterogeneous.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

There has been an explosion of gene and target based research and therapeutics in the multitude of fields that compose clinical medicine. The Journal of Clinical Medicine's (JCM) staff and editorial board are dedicated to providing cutting edge, timely, and peer-reviewed articles covering the diverse subspecialties of clinical medicine. The journal publishes concise, innovative, and exciting research articles as well as clinically significant articles and reviews that are pertinent to the myriad of disciplines within medicine. The articles published are relevant to both primary care physicians and specialists. The journal's full-texts are archived in PubMed Central and indexed in PubMed. Please consider submitting your manuscripts for publication to our journal and check us out on-line!
