Targeted Treatment in Chronic Inflammatory Arthritis

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to provide a comprehensive overview of the latest advancements in targeted therapies within the scope of clinical medicine. The primary objective of this Special Issue is to present original research articles, systematic reviews, and meta-analyses that explore the efficacy, safety, and clinical outcomes of targeted treatment approaches in chronic inflammatory arthritis. Specific areas of interest for this Special Issue include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Evaluation of the effectiveness and long-term outcomes of targeted therapies in different types of chronic inflammatory arthritis.
2. Assessment of the impact of targeted therapies on disease progression, remission rates, quality of life, and comorbidities in patients with chronic inflammatory arthritis.
3. Comparative studies analyzing the efficacy and safety profiles of different targeted treatment modalities.

We invite researchers, clinicians, and scholars in the field of clinical medicine to contribute their valuable insights and findings to this Special Issue.
