Clinical Advances in Traumatic Brain Injury

Message from the Guest Editor

Traumatic brain injury (TBI) is a global public health problem. Every year, over 69 million TBI cases are reported worldwide. TBI affects patients in high- and low-middle-income countries and across different age groups. Despite decades of research, guidelines and recommendations, several questions remain unanswered:

- What is the optimal management of care for patients with TBI? Are we providing care concordant with the latest evidence, guidelines and recommendations?
- How can we advance the care of patients with TBI in resource-limited clinical settings? What are the challenges in adapting guidelines across different resource settings?
- Are we providing safe, effective, patient-centered, timely, efficient and equitable care to our patients with TBI?
- What are the principles of TBI care in the emergency room, the intensive care unit and the operating room? How similar or different are these?
- What is the role of multimodal monitoring?
