

Special Issue

Advances in Clinical Practice and Personalized Approaches in Cardiovascular Disease

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to address the emerging challenges and innovations in the management of cardiovascular disease, with a focus on advancing clinical practice through personalized approaches. Recent advances in imaging technologies and data-driven predictive models have opened new pathways for precision medicine. However, the translation of these innovations into clinical practice faces hurdles such as heterogeneous patient populations and the integration of multi-modal data. This Special Issue invites original research and reviews that explore personalized diagnostics, therapeutic strategies, and preventive measures in cardiovascular care. The scope includes novel biomarkers, cutting-edge imaging techniques, patient stratification methods, and advancements in pharmacotherapy that enhance treatment plans. The goal is to bring together leading experts in the field to share knowledge and mobilize future efforts in bridging the gap between research and clinical application, ultimately improving patient outcomes.
