Clinical Insights into Immune Cell Markers in Cancer

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue, entitled "Clinical Insights into Immune Cell Markers in Cancer", explores the crucial role of immune cell markers in understanding and managing cancer. Currently, there are a limited number of immune markers that can predict responses or resistance to immunotherapy-based treatments. This Special Issue aims to bridge the gap in biomarkers that can elucidate the complex interactions between cancer cells and the immune system. Additionally, it examines the application of these markers in diagnostic processes and their potential as therapeutic targets, especially in the era of personalized medicine and immunotherapy. By focusing on innovative research and recent advances, this Special Issue seeks to enhance our understanding of tumor immunology and improve patient outcomes through better predictive tools and more targeted treatment strategies.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

There has been an explosion of gene and target based research and therapeutics in the multitude of fields that compose clinical medicine. The Journal of Clinical Medicine's (JCM) staff and editorial board are dedicated to providing cutting edge, timely, and peer-reviewed articles covering the diverse subspecialties of clinical medicine. The journal publishes concise, innovative, and exciting research articles as well as clinically significant articles and reviews that are pertinent to the myriad of disciplines within medicine. The articles published are relevant to both primary care physicians and specialists. The journal's full-texts are archived in PubMed Central and indexed in PubMed. Please consider submitting your manuscripts for publication to our journal and check us out on-line!
