Genitourinary Cancers: Clinical Advances and Practice Updates

Message from the Guest Editors

Genitourinary malignancies, including prostate, bladder, and kidney cancer, compromise some of the most prevalent cancers globally. The medical and surgical management of these cancers generally follow consensus guidelines. However, the management of rare genitourinary cancers, such as penile and urachal cancer, as well as bladder and kidney cancer of variant histology, is unclear. The purpose of this Special Issue is to provide a forum for the latest research and guidance on managing these rare genitourinary cancers. We invite the submission of original clinical studies, reviews, and state-of-the-art manuscripts that explore these topics, with the goal of advancing treatment approaches and improving patient outcomes across genitourinary malignancies.
