Bleeding and Thrombotic Complications in Patients with Premalignant Hematologic Conditions: Diagnostic and Therapeutic Challenges

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue is dedicated to highlighting recent advances and challenges in the field of thrombotic and bleeding complications in otherwise asymptomatic individuals with premalignant hematologic conditions characterized by clonal hematopoiesis of myeloid or lymphoid origin. Special focus will be given to emerging data indicating a cross-talk of hemostasis with monoclonal gammopathy of undetermined significance, monoclonal B-cell lymphocytosis, and clonal hematopoiesis.

These conditions are increasingly recognized for their association not only with progression to overt malignancy, but also with vascular complications. Recent evidence has drawn attention to newly recognized thrombogenic entities, grouped under the term monoclonal gammopathy of thrombotic significance, including VITT-like syndrome.

This issue aims to foster dialogue between researchers and clinicians, encouraging multidisciplinary collaboration in this rapidly evolving field.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

There has been an explosion of gene and target based research and therapeutics in the multitude of fields that compose clinical medicine. The Journal of Clinical Medicine's (JCM) staff and editorial board are dedicated to providing cutting edge, timely, and peer-reviewed articles covering the diverse subspecialties of clinical medicine. The journal publishes concise, innovative, and exciting research articles as well as clinically significant articles and reviews that are pertinent to the myriad of disciplines within medicine. The articles published are relevant to both primary care physicians and specialists. The journal's full-texts are archived in PubMed Central and indexed in PubMed. Please consider submitting your manuscripts for publication to our journal and check us out on-line!
