

Special Issue

Clinical Advances in Assisted Reproductive Technology

Message from the Guest Editor

We are delighted to introduce the Special Issue "Clinical Advances in Assisted Reproductive Technology", aimed at disseminating the latest research in assisted reproductive technology. Nowadays, there is an increasing need for assisted reproductive technology treatments due to social reasons such as late motherhood and family planning as well as improvements in the management of chronic degenerative and neoplastic diseases allowing fertility preservation. The Special Issue's scope encompasses a wide range of topics, such as ovarian reserve, ovarian stimulation, in vitro fertilization, embryo transfer, pregnancy outcomes after IVF, etc. We encourage researchers, clinicians, and experts in the field to mobilize their knowledge and experience to advance the clinical landscape of assisted reproductive technology. Together, we can drive progress in assisted reproductive technology, ultimately making a positive impact on fertility outcomes. We look forward to your valuable contributions to this Special Issue.
