Recent Progress in Rehabilitation Medicine—2nd Edition

Message from the Guest Editor

This second volume aims to focus on the recent advances in rehabilitation. Rehabilitation generally aims to "add life to years" by helping patients with impairments achieve and utilize their full physical, mental and social potential. However, growing evidence suggests that rehabilitation for patients with visceral impairment, such as renal, cardiac and pulmonary impairment, can not only improve exercise performance and the health-related quality of life, but also increase survival. Therefore, rehabilitation for patients does not simply aim to "add life to years" but "add life to years and years to life", which is a new rehabilitation concept. We are soliciting such cutting-edge research reports and overviews in relation to clinical rehabilitation, to offer a promising model for the new field of rehabilitation. Prof. Dr. Mashahiro Kohzuki
