Clinical Advances in Gingivitis

Message from the Guest Editor

We are delighted to announce a new Special Issue focusing on the latest advances in gingivitis. We kindly invite researchers, clinicians, and academics to contribute their original research and reviews. In this Special Issue, we aim to cover a broad spectrum of topics, including, but not limited to, the following: (i) research exploring the underlying biological processes and genetic factors contributing to gingivitis; (ii) innovations in diagnostic methods, including biomarkers, imaging technologies, and artificial intelligence applications; and (iii) studies focusing on prevention, including oral hygiene practices, dietary interventions, and public health initiatives. In addition, we would be interested in advances in treatment modalities, such as pharmacological interventions, minimally invasive procedures, and novel therapeutic agents. We would also like to explore collaborative studies that bridge the gap between periodontology and other medical subjects, with a view to highlighting the systemic impact of gingivitis.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

There has been an explosion of gene and target based research and therapeutics in the multitude of fields that compose clinical medicine. The Journal of Clinical Medicine's (JCM) staff and editorial board are dedicated to providing cutting edge, timely, and peer-reviewed articles covering the diverse subspecialties of clinical medicine. The journal publishes concise, innovative, and exciting research articles as well as clinically significant articles and reviews that are pertinent to the myriad of disciplines within medicine. The articles published are relevant to both primary care physicians and specialists. The journal's full-texts are archived in PubMed Central and indexed in PubMed. Please consider submitting your manuscripts for publication to our journal and check us out on-line!
