Novel Insights into Neonatal Intensive Care

Message from the Guest Editors

In recent years, the advancements made in the field of neonatology have been tremendous. Minimally invasive and non-invasive ventilation, a better understanding of the importance of nutrition for growth and neurodevelopmental outcomes, detailed imaging facilities, strict infection policies, new medications approved for neonatal use, developmental follow-up and support, etc., have played crucial roles in the reformation of our practice. Of course, a wide field of research needs to be explored to help us to learn, better understand, and apply new evidence-based practices to premature and critically ill infants, aiming to achieve the best possible outcomes. In this Special Issue, we welcome authors to submit papers focused on advances in disease pathogenesis, diagnosis, and treatment of vulnerable patients in neonatal intensive care units.
