Advances in Glaucoma Surgery: 2nd Edition

Message from the Guest Editors

We are pleased to invite you to contribute to the Special Issue entitled "Advances in Glaucoma Surgery: 2nd Edition". This is one new edition, and we published 23 papers in the first edition. Glaucoma surgery still represents a real challenge both in terms of ensuring safety and efficacy, and particularly the balance between the two. Significant technological advances have led to innovative surgeries, which have in turn been rapidly introduced into clinical practice. New devices to lower intraocular pressure show promising results, but it is still unclear whether they can replace the current 'standard' surgeries, such as trabeculectomy or glaucoma drainage devices. Moreover, even these standard procedures are being continuously modified in various ways in the search for better safety and efficacy outcomes. At the same time, more and more attention is being paid to the ocular surface. It is well known that glaucoma-therapy-related ocular surface disease can worsen patients' quality of life and affect the outcome of glaucoma filtration surgery. This is the reason for this Special Issue, for which we welcome manuscripts on topics related to Glaucoma surgery.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

There has been an explosion of gene and target based research and therapeutics in the multitude of fields that compose clinical medicine. The Journal of Clinical Medicine's (JCM) staff and editorial board are dedicated to providing cutting edge, timely, and peer-reviewed articles covering the diverse subspecialties of clinical medicine. The journal publishes concise, innovative, and exciting research articles as well as clinically significant articles and reviews that are pertinent to the myriad of disciplines within medicine. The articles published are relevant to both primary care physicians and specialists. The journal's full-texts are archived in PubMed Central and indexed in PubMed. Please consider submitting your manuscripts for publication to our journal and check us out on-line!
