The Impact of the COVID-19 Emergency on the Quality of Life of the General Population, Part II

Message from the Guest Editor

COVID-19 is a pandemic that has forced many countries to implement various restrictive measures to prevent its spread. These restrictive measures and quarantine periods have caused an increase in anxiety crises, fear of contagion and post-traumatic stress disorder (frustration, boredom, isolation, fear, insomnia, difficulty concentrating). Although only a few years have passed since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic, a large body of scientific literature is already present on the impact that the worldwide spread of the virus has had on people's quality of life. The COVID-19 pandemic represents a catastrophe of global dimensions, the first traumatic event on a global scale in the most recent history of humanity.

Many studies have reported a post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) element during the COVID-19 pandemic. We welcome manuscripts on the impact of the COVID-19 emergency on the quality of life of the general population, children and people with disabilities. We will be happy to review your contributions to our Special Issue in the Journal of Clinical Medicine.
