

Special Issue

Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation in the Emergency Care Unit

Message from the Guest Editors

Research on cardiopulmonary resuscitation within the emergency care unit is of critical importance to advancing the care of critically ill patients. Unlike most other hospital units, emergency care units face unique challenges in implementing research designs due to the urgent and high-stakes nature of their interventions. Nevertheless, the continuous development of new strategies, procedures, equipment, and technologies underscores the necessity of ongoing research to improve patient outcomes. This Special Issue of the Journal of Clinical Medicine, titled "Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation in the Emergency Care Unit", will highlight recent advances in cardiac arrest management and the integration of novel technologies in emergency care settings. We invite submissions presenting relevant data on cardiopulmonary resuscitation performance, new protocols, and emerging instruments or technologies with potential applications in this field. Additionally, articles addressing special circumstances related to cardiopulmonary resuscitation in emergency care are highly encouraged.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

There has been an explosion of gene and target based research and therapeutics in the multitude of fields that compose clinical medicine. The Journal of Clinical Medicine's (JCM) staff and editorial board are dedicated to providing cutting edge, timely, and peer-reviewed articles covering the diverse subspecialties of clinical medicine. The journal publishes concise, innovative, and exciting research articles as well as clinically significant articles and reviews that are pertinent to the myriad of disciplines within medicine. The articles published are relevant to both primary care physicians and specialists. The journal's full-texts are archived in PubMed Central and indexed in PubMed. Please consider submitting your manuscripts for publication to our journal and check us out on-line!
