Message from the Guest Editors

We are pleased to present a Special Issue in the Journal of Clinical Medicine, titled "Novel Sepsis and Post-Sepsis Care: The Heart and Beyond". Sepsis remains a major killer worldwide. Novel developments in the management of sepsis patients are urgently needed. There is increasing evidence suggesting that survivors of sepsis can develop a number of complications in a range of organs such as the heart and beyond. This Special Issue calls for colleagues worldwide to share their research and opinions on the management of patients during and after sepsis, advancing the care for our patients. We welcome the submission of original research articles and comprehensive reviews. We encourage you to share your findings and help to shape the future of this dynamic specialty.
