Cutting-Edge Topics in Dry Eye Disease

Message from the Guest Editor

Diagnosis and treatment of dry eye disease is certainly one of the fastest evolving fields of modern ophthalmology. In recent years, multiple novel diagnosis and treatment approaches regarding dry eye disease and Meibomian gland dysfunction as well as related medical therapy have been introduced. It is not surprising that these approaches help to address clinical problems better than before, but also led to many additional questions that need to be addressed, such as biomarkers, neuropathic corneal pain, efficacy of anti-oxidative agents, and so on.

It is the aim of this Special Issue to provide an update regarding current and upcoming diagnostic and therapeutic options in the field of dry eye. Therefore, we would like to invite original research, state-of-the-art reviews, and viewpoints. In particular, we would like to encourage the submission of manuscripts covering important items regarding therapeutic agents or devices needed for an optimal long-term outcome of dry eye.
