Advances in Minimally Invasive Otolaryngology: Precision Techniques and Functional Outcomes

Message from the Guest Editors

Otolaryngology has entered a new era of technological and conceptual innovation. Rapid progress in surgical platforms and tools, imaging modalities, and functional rehabilitation strategies is transforming patient care across ear, sinonasal, and head and neck disorders. These developments reflect the growing need for precision, safety, and measurable improvements in quality of life. This Special Issue aims to showcase recent advances and future directions in otolaryngology, highlighting how novel techniques and functional outcome monitoring contribute to more effective and patient-centered care. In this Special Issue, original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- New surgical and diagnostic techniques in otology, rhinology, and head and neck surgery;
- Emerging technologies such as endoscopic, exoscopic, and robotic platforms;
- Novel implants and grafts in otology, rhinology, and skull base surgery;
- Functional outcome monitoring, including hearing, olfaction, swallowing, voice, and sleep disorders.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

There has been an explosion of gene and target based research and therapeutics in the multitude of fields that compose clinical medicine. The Journal of Clinical Medicine's (JCM) staff and editorial board are dedicated to providing cutting edge, timely, and peer-reviewed articles covering the diverse subspecialties of clinical medicine. The journal publishes concise, innovative, and exciting research articles as well as clinically significant articles and reviews that are pertinent to the myriad of disciplines within medicine. The articles published are relevant to both primary care physicians and specialists. The journal's full-texts are archived in PubMed Central and indexed in PubMed. Please consider submitting your manuscripts for publication to our journal and check us out on-line!
