Update on Glaucoma: Pathogenesis and Treatment

Message from the Guest Editor

For over 100 years, the only therapy used for glaucoma has only been hypertensive. At present, we are trying to understand if there are other therapeutic possibilities beyond these. In fact, glaucoma is a multifactorial disease where proapoptotic signals develop towards retinal ganglion cells. In light of the new pathogenetic acquisitions, it is possible to hypothesize the use of new therapeutic approaches to combat this complex disease. The purpose of this Special Issue is to illustrate the new developments that are taking place in the study of glaucoma from pathogenesis to its therapy.
