Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue, “Vasculitis in Adults and Children: Symptoms, Diagnosis and Treatment”, will summarize recent discoveries regarding the symptoms, diagnosis and treatment of vasculitis in both adults and children. Clinical research studies regarding epidemiology, gender difference, prognostic factors, complications, classification criteria and treatment, as well as basic/translational research that tries to identify novel therapeutic targets, are welcome. Through these contributions, we will be able to better understand how to diagnose and treat vasculitis. We will also discuss how future therapeutic strategies could resolve currently unmet medical needs. Thus, authors are encouraged to submit original research, review articles, systematic reviews and meta-analyses.
