

Special Issue

Clinical Advances in Obesity and Bariatric Surgery—2nd Edition

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue, compiled by Dr. Dang and Dr. Mocanu, will be dedicated to exploring and highlighting work at the forefront of innovation within the obesity and bariatric surgery sector. This Special Issue will serve as a call for research papers characterizing and evaluating ongoing advancements in obesity treatment, with a focus on the persistent evolution of surgical, medical, and endoluminal therapies in addition to metabolic procedures in the field.

This Special Issue is specifically designed to showcase research papers that offer novel and critical insights into advancements in obesity treatment, including the continuously evolving surgical and metabolic procedures, in addition to clinical outcomes. This Special Issue will feature a variety of research types, including data-driven comparative analyses and in-depth reviews, to foster a stimulating academic discourse surrounding bariatric surgery and metabolic disease.
