Myocardial Infarction with Nonobstructive Coronary Arteries (MINOCA): Current Status, Challenges and Future Directions

Message from the Guest Editors

We are very pleased to announce the upcoming release of a Special Issue of the Journal of Clinical Medicine focused on Myocardial Infarction and Non-Obstructed Coronary Arteries (MINOCA). MINOCA recognition has been gaining ground in recent years thanks to increased awareness of this condition and the presence of powerful diagnostic tools, such as ultrasensitive biomarkers of myocardial injury. Although there is an increasing interest from clinicians all around the world regarding MINOCA, its management still represents a challenge and many aspects remain controversial. In fact, research on MINOCA has dramatically improved in the last few years, but there are many unresolved issues, especially those pertaining to diagnostic and therapeutic approaches. A “precision medicine” approach is required to manage these patients, and this dedicated Special Issue of the Journal of Clinical Medicine represents a unique opportunity to disseminate your research in the intriguing field of MINOCA.
