

Special Issue

Clinical Frontiers in Nerve Repair and Regeneration

Message from the Guest Editor

The aim of this Special Issue is to provide an overview of advances in surgical technologies, design, nerve repair strategies, bio-engineering materials, medicine, rehabilitation concepts, and assistant devices for peripheral nerve injury and its related complications, such as neuropathic pain, amyotrophy, etc. Both original articles and systematic reviews on clinical efficacy are welcome. We eagerly expect reports on novel concepts of therapy for enhancing the neural-plasticity-related recovery of sensorimotor functions.
