Advances in Spine Surgery: Current Innovations and Future Directions

Message from the Guest Editors

The Special Issue "Advances in Spine Surgery: Current Innovations and Future Directions" seeks to highlight the latest developments and ongoing challenges in spine surgery. Despite progress in techniques and patient outcomes, key issues remain in minimally invasive methods, spinal biomechanics, regenerative therapies, surgical robotics, and personalized care. This issue invites original research, reviews, and clinical studies on innovative surgical techniques, instrumentation, technology integration, translational research, and long-term patient outcomes. It aims to promote interdisciplinary collaboration among researchers, surgeons, and healthcare professionals to share knowledge, address persistent challenges, and shape the future of spine surgery. Contributions from diverse fields are encouraged to drive innovation and improve patient care in this rapidly evolving specialty.
