Cardiac Electrophysiology: Focus on Clinical Practice

Message from the Guest Editor

Cardiac electrophysiology is a rapidly advancing field, contributing to significant improvements in the diagnosis and management of arrhythmias. Ongoing developments in mapping techniques, ablation strategies, device therapies, and clinical guidelines are reshaping clinical practice and research. Journal of Clinical Medicine invites researchers and clinicians to submit manuscripts to a Special Issue on "Cardiac Electrophysiology: Focus on Clinical Practice". This Special Issue aims to bring together original research articles, comprehensive reviews, and case reports that address recent advances, unresolved challenges, and emerging trends in this area. Topics of interest include arrhythmia mechanisms, innovative therapeutic approaches, and interdisciplinary perspectives on the integration of electrophysiology in clinical practice. As an open-access journal indexed in PubMed, all published articles will be freely available to a global audience, ensuring maximum visibility and accessibility for your scientific work. All manuscripts will undergo rigorous peer review to ensure high scientific quality. I look forward to receiving your submissions for this Special Issue.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

There has been an explosion of gene and target based research and therapeutics in the multitude of fields that compose clinical medicine. The Journal of Clinical Medicine's (JCM) staff and editorial board are dedicated to providing cutting edge, timely, and peer-reviewed articles covering the diverse subspecialties of clinical medicine. The journal publishes concise, innovative, and exciting research articles as well as clinically significant articles and reviews that are pertinent to the myriad of disciplines within medicine. The articles published are relevant to both primary care physicians and specialists. The journal's full-texts are archived in PubMed Central and indexed in PubMed. Please consider submitting your manuscripts for publication to our journal and check us out on-line!
