

Special Issue

Clinical Advances in Cardiovascular Interventions

Message from the Guest Editor

Cardiovascular diseases are still a major cause of morbidity and mortality throughout the world. To address the rising burden of cardiovascular diseases, we would like to encourage researchers and clinicians alike to submit their pivotal studies on advances in cardiovascular interventions. It is our great privilege to invite you to contribute to this Special Issue. We aim to publish well-designed studies that can exert a high level of impact on the evidence base of cardiovascular diseases. The long-term goal of this Special Issue is to create scientific environment able to create studies exploring current clinical practice in percutaneous coronary interventions, valvular heart diseases, arrhythmias, and other cardiovascular interventions. Additionally, and equally important, consideration will be given to studies that focus on new techniques and methods used in the diverse array of cardiovascular interventions. We aim to publish ground-breaking research articles of significant clinical and scientific value, including observational studies, clinical trials, and review articles. Unique clinical cases, particularly supported by advanced imaging, are also welcome.
