Dear colleagues, I am excited to compile a Special Issue on updates and advances in breast reconstruction, and I hope this will serve as a go-to edition for a range of exciting topics that are on the horizon. The aim of this edition will be to include an international breadth of clinicians and researchers, and a breadth of topics, including clinical aspects of autologous and alloplastic reconstruction, the effect of oncologic advances on breast reconstruction, and basic science advances in oncology, tissue transfer, and alloplastic devices.
