

Special Issue

Valvular Heart Disease: A World in Constant Motion

Message from the Guest Editors

This is a formal invitation to be part of a new Special Issue of the Journal of Clinical Medicine. The title is self-explaining: “Valvular Heart Disease: A World in Constant Motion”. Due to the technological advancement of the diagnostic tools and a better clinical knowledge of pathophysiology, we are rethinking old concepts and facing new topics every single day. The consolidation of endovascular treatment of valvular heart diseases has substantially contributed to the growing interest in this field. Among the several topics of interest, we would like to focus on prosthetic heart valve dysfunction (still a diagnostic and therapeutic dilemma in 2020), echocardiographic assessment of mitral and tricuspid valve disease (the new frontier of valve interventional treatment), controversial aortic stenosis presentations (i.e., low-flow, low-gradient aortic stenosis), and treatment aspects. Therefore, the aim of this Special Issue is to give to the JCM readers an update on the pathophysiology, diagnosis, and treatment of heart valve disease.

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

There has been an explosion of gene and target based research and therapeutics in the multitude of fields that compose clinical medicine. The Journal of Clinical Medicine's (JCM) staff and editorial board are dedicated to providing cutting edge, timely, and peer-reviewed articles covering the diverse subspecialties of clinical medicine. The journal publishes concise, innovative, and exciting research articles as well as clinically significant articles and reviews that are pertinent to the myriad of disciplines within medicine. The articles published are relevant to both primary care physicians and specialists. The journal's full-texts are archived in PubMed Central and indexed in PubMed. Please consider submitting your manuscripts for publication to our journal and check us out on-line!
