Ice-Structure Interaction in Marine Engineering

Message from the Guest Editors

- This Special Issue is proposed to collect contributions that present novel models and methods, the latest achievements and discoveries, and state-of-the-art reviews and thoughts on industry development regarding ice-structure interaction. We welcome all qualified research that presents recent developments related to ice-structure interaction. We will consider a wide range of areas related to this Special Issue, including, but not limited to, the following:
- Ice models and their mechanical as well as engineering behaviors;
- Ice fracture;
- Ship navigation in ice-covered regions and arctic marine operations;
- Ice breaking;
- Ice-structure model tests and in situ experiments;
- Ice-water-structure interaction:
- Icing and deicing on structures;
- Materials science in ice areas
