Population Dynamics, Movements, and Foraging Ecology of Polar Cetaceans

Message from the Guest Editors

An increased anthropogenic activity and a changing climate are causing unprecedented changes to the polar regions. Understanding the population dynamics, distribution, abundance, and life history characteristics of polar cetaceans has never been more vital. This Special Issue aims to publish the latest research findings on polar cetaceans in order to facilitate the rapid dissemination of information on their conservation and management. We encourage the submission of high-quality papers utilizing state-of-the-art methods that directly address the aspects mentioned above.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The Journal of Marine Science and Engineering (JMSE, ISSN 2077-1312) is an international peer-reviewed open access journal which provides an advanced forum for studies related to marine science and engineering. The journal aims to provide scholarly research on a range of topics, including ocean engineering, chemical oceanography, physical oceanography, marine biology and marine geosciences. We invite you to publish in our journal sharing your important research findings with the global ocean community.
