Application of Deep Learning in Underwater Image Processing –2nd Edition

Message from the Guest Editors

Underwater image processing is one of the key technologies driving advancements in fields such as marine biology, oceanography, underwater exploration, and many more. In recent years, deep learning technologies have emerged as a game-changer in addressing these challenges and improving underwater image quality. These technologies provide new opportunities and insights, enhancing their applicability and reliability in real-world scenarios. The scope of this Special Issue is to cover all aspects that relate to underwater image processing. Topics of interest include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Underwater image enhancement and restoration;
- Underwater image denoising;
- Underwater object detection and classification;
- Underwater object tracking;
- Underwater object recognition;
- Underwater semantic segmentation;
- Underwater scene understanding;
- Underwater image depth estimation;
- Underwater 3D modeling;
- Underwater image synthesis and generation;
- Generative AI for underwater image processing;
- Underwater image quality assessment methods, including full-reference assessment metrics, non-reference assessment metrics, etc.
