Waves and Ocean Structures

Message from the Guest Editors

In this Special Issue we would like to collect contemporary papers with topics including, but not limited to, interactions between waves and ocean structures. The wave theory can include effects from ocean structures. Various ocean structures can be included, such as fixed, movable, porous, flexible, freefloating, or with moorings. We are particularly interested in coupling between waves and structures emphasizing effects on wave fields or motions of the structure. As for the research methodology, it can be analytical, numerical, or in situ data analysis. New findings are especially welcome. With the increasing development of natural energy such as solar, current, or wave energy. new types of ocean structures interacting with ocean waves could also be an interesting topic. We encourage you to contribute to this Special Issue, and to help make this Issue successful.
