Message from the Guest Editors

Precision medicine represents a bold research area with the potential to revolutionize the way we approach and treat diseases. Alongside nanotechnology and molecular medicine, precision medicine enables the specific delivery of therapeutic agents to cells and organs of interest, thus improving treatment outcomes and reducing side effects. In the obstetric field, several opportunities exist for existing diagnostic and treatment tools as well as for the development of innovative strategies that are driven by multiple factors, including fetal growth restriction, preterm birth, fetal abnormalities, and labor monitoring. In addition, maternal tumors in pregnancy could benefit from precise medicine development, reducing cancer treatment burden and improving pregnancy outcomes. This Special Issue aims to provide a collection of manuscripts providing an overview of the current status of precision medicine in pregnancy complications. We welcome research articles or reviews on pregnancy complications and precision medicine.

Journal of Personalized Medicine (JPM; ISSN 2075-4426) is an international, open access journal aimed at bringing all aspects of personalized medicine to one platform. JPM publishes cutting edge, innovative preclinical and translational scientific research and technologies related to personalized medicine (e.g., precision medicine, pharmacogenomics/proteomics, systems biology, ‘omics association analysis). JPM is covered in Scopus, the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE), PubMed, PMC, Embase, and other databases.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges \(APC\) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, PubMed, PMC, Embase, and other databases.

Journal Rank: CiteScore - Q1 (Medicine (miscellaneous))
