Message from the Guest Editor

We are pleased to announce the launch of a new Special Issue, "Current Trends and Future Challenges in Rheumatology".

This Special Issue aims to elucidate the most recent innovations in prevention, early diagnosis, and treatment in rheumatology.

There are still many underexplored aspects of the role of constitutive (genes, microbiota, biopsy patterns, and gender) and external (infections and lifestyle) factors in rheumatic diseases. Modern medicine is oriented to develop innovative integrated systems (algorithms and machine learning) and new biomarkers to predict different phenotypes and severity. The COVID-19 pandemic changed many views, introducing "smart medicine" with the non-face-to-face with implementation of visits telemedicine and innovative uses of imaging (ultrasound, magnetic resonance, HRCT, and PET), which had important consequences for the knowledge of emerging underestimated rare diseases.

We are soliciting original articles, meta-analyses, reviews, and case series related to future challenges in rheumatology.
