

Special Issue

Personalized Therapy and Clinical Outcomes for Heart Failure

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue focuses on the integration of personalized approaches into the management of both acute and chronic heart failure. We aim to showcase research that advances phenotyping, risk stratification, biomarkers, imaging, genetics, and treatment optimization. Cutting-edge contributions on novel therapeutic targets, digital health tools, and real-world clinical outcomes are particularly encouraged.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Journal of Personalized Medicine is one of the few journals that covers the diverse areas involved in the field, including research at basic, translational, and clinical levels. It focuses on “omics”-level studies that seek to define the basis of interindividual variation in susceptibility for a disease, its prognosis or definition of clinical subsets, and response to therapy (pharmacogenomics). We are also interested in systems biology as it relates to interindividual variation, and research on new methodologies, informatics, and biostatistics, in the aforementioned areas.
