Sustainability Development through Green Economics: Application of Fintech

Message from the Guest Editors

Sustainable Development is one which satisfies existing demands without jeopardizing the capacity of subsequent generations to fulfil their respective needs. Economies at their core consist of a set of laws and standards that encourage certain conduct and penalized others. This concept will not supplant sustainable development but instead places a fresh emphasis on the region's economy, investments pertaining to infrastructure, job and skill needs, and favorable social and environmental consequences. This Special Issue aims to assess the concept of the green economy and how it might contribute towards sustainable development. This Issue aims to elucidate about sustainable development. We will also look at sustainable finance, fin tech, digital lending as a tributary towards sustainable development, thereby making the edition multidisciplinary. The Issue traverses terrains of the power of economic as well as financial policy, green investment, green insurance and green infrastructural development in order to ensure sustainable development.
