Special Issue

Behaviour in Financial Decision-Making

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue delves into the intricate dimensions of borrowers' behavior that impact financial decision making. Topics of interest for publication include, but are not limited to:

- Analyzing cognitive biases influencing how individuals utilize loans and behavioral patterns affecting borrowing choices.
- Exploring the psychological determinants affecting how borrowers perceive and navigate financial risks.
- Investigating the role of socio-economic factors in shaping borrowers' repayment behavior.
- Assessing the influence of financial literacy on borrowers' decision making regarding loans.
- Examining the impact of cultural and contextual variables on borrowers' attitudes towards credit.
- Exploring the dynamics of borrowing within households and its implications on financial decision making.
- Investigating how individual personalities influence perceptions and decisions related to credit.

Contributors are encouraged to provide insights, empirical studies, and theoretical frameworks to enhance our understanding of the multifaceted aspects of borrowers' behavior.
